Hours per week (full semester equivalent) in Lecture: 3  In-Class Lab: 0  Arranged: 0

Date Submitted:  (office use only)

I. Catalog Description:
This course offers an interdisciplinary approach to studying the origins, current status, trends and possible solutions of major global issues. This Global Studies course will emphasize interdisciplinary inquiry by drawing upon both the holistic body of work in global studies, as well as the approaches of related fields such as anthropology, economics, environmental studies, geography, history, philosophy, political science, psychology, sociology, and women's studies. The course will examine multiple global issues of concern such as international war and conflict, global inequality, food, water, energy, climate change, population growth, migration, and social change.

II. Examples of Appropriate Text or Other Required Reading: (include all publication dates; for transferable courses at least one text should have been published within the last five years)

III. Course Objectives:
Upon completion of the course students will be able to:
1. Identify major recurring and emerging global issues.
2. Explain the historical origins or roots of global issues.
3. Project the consequences of unchecked global problems.
4. Identify obstacles to the resolution of global issues.
5. Propose informed solutions to global social issues.
6. Analyze the interconnections between and among global issues.
7. Critically analyze issues from a multi- and inter-disciplinary perspective.
8. Compare and contrast national, regional and international attempts to address global issues.
9. Evaluate national, regional and international efforts to solve global issues.

IV. Methods of Presentation:
A combination of lecture and discussion, film, collaborative learning, and/or service-learning/experiential learning is employed. Given the multi- and interdisciplinary nature of the course, it is highly recommended that guest lectures—both from a diverse pool of faculty and from the larger community—be utilized. Moreover, given the “global” and “international” nature of the greater Los Angeles area, it is expected that this course will make use of the numerous opportunities to engage our student more directly in the issues being addressed in the course. Questions and discussions are strongly encouraged to facilitate a greater understanding and intellectual analysis of the subject matter.

V. Course Content:
The global issues selected by a particular instructor may vary from semester to semester. As a result, the required course content is structured around the approach to the selected issues rather than the issues themselves.

Each issue must be approached from a minimum of 3 “disciplinary areas” (anthropology, economics, environmental studies, geography, history, philosophy, political science, psychology, sociology, and women’s studies):

VI. Methods of Evaluation: (Specific percentages will vary with instructor; approximate values are shown.)

Evaluation of a student's performance is accomplished through a possible combination of multiple choice quizzes and tests, essay examinations, written analysis of texts, research papers, class participation, and group and individual projects.

While each instructor is responsible for her/his own assessment of student performance, it is strongly encouraged that the method of evaluation include a diverse skill set that will account for a variety of student learning abilities that demonstrate competence in course content and knowledge.

Below is one possible scheme:

VII. Sample Assignments: (please describe at least 2 sample assignments)

1. In a 5-7 page essay regarding the issue of "xxxxx"; provide an analysis of the issue from two of the disciplines/perspectives discussed in the course. How does each perspective define and approach the issue? What are the contributions and limitations of each perspective regarding potential solutions?

2. Prepare a presentation for the class which demonstrates the interconnectedness of two issues addressed in the course. Your presentation should make use of the relevant readings and include at least two additional sources of information. The presentation should also demonstrate how the issue is approached from at least two perspectives.

Global Studies 10

Course Level Student Learning Outcomes: (Must list at least 2)

1. Having been presented with multiple perspectives by which to address a global issue, students will recognize, compare and contrast the key contributions and limitations of each.

   As assessed by: an essay in which students present, debate and analyze multiple perspectives on a global issue.

2. Having been presented with specific global issues, students will identify and analyze the interconnected nature of those issues and the consequences of that regarding solutions.

   As assessed by a presentation in which students identify and analyze the interconnectedness of two identified global issues and propose solutions.

Demonstrate how this course supports/maps to at least one program learning outcome. Please include all that apply:

1. Global Studies is a multi- and interdisciplinary program designed to increase knowledge and understanding of the processes of globalization and their impacts on societies, cultures, and environments around the world.

   The course is designed to encourage students to become "interdisciplinary global thinkers" and develop team work skills. Students in the course are required to address a global issue from multiple perspectives and present solutions while simultaneously acknowledging the interconnected nature of the issues.

2. Specifically, a program outcome is to prepare students to analyze, synthesize and evaluate current world events, conditions and issues.

   This course prepares students to analyze, synthesize and evaluate current world events, conditions and issues.

Demonstrate how this course supports/maps to at least one of the following Institutional Learning Outcomes. Please include all that apply. Through their experiences at SMC, students will

ILO #1: acquire the self-confidence and self-discipline to pursue their intellectual curiosities with integrity in both their personal and professional lives;

   Requiring students to address global issues from multiple perspectives, both individually and as part of a team, familiarizes them with the forces of globalization currently impacting their own lives and provides them with a sense of collective purpose that supports the ILO.

ILO #2: obtain the knowledge and academic skills necessary to access, evaluate, and interpret ideas, images, and information critically in order to communicate effectively, reach conclusions, and solve problems

   Requiring students to research current global issues from multiple perspectives and make arguments for potential solutions supports this ILO.

ILO #3: respect the inter-relatedness of the global human environment, engage with diverse peoples, and acknowledge the significance of their daily actions relative to broader issues and events

   Requiring students make explicit the interconnected nature of global issues supports this ILO.

ILO #4: take responsibility for their own impact on the earth by living a sustainable and ethical life style

   Requiring students to explore the interconnected nature of global issues from multiple perspectives will shed light on the importance of recognizing and taking responsibility for our own impact on global issues.

Step 2: Student Learning Outcome

It is expected that at least one student learning outcome (SLO) of this course reflects the particular focus of the category to which you are applying. Please identify that SLO here:

SLO:
1. Having been presented with multiple perspectives by which to address a global issue, students will recognize, compare and contrast the key contributions and limitations of each
2. Having been presented with specific global issues, students will identify and analyze the interconnected nature of those issues and the consequences of that regarding solutions

Step 4: Narrative

Please write a rationale as to why this course should fulfill of the SMC Global Citizenship A.A. degree requirement for the particular category under which you have applied. Explain how this course fulfills the areas checked above.

Narrative:

Global Studies 10 is a foundational course in the Global Studies AA degree at SMC and fulfills the three vectors required for Global Citizenship under the Global Studies category:

1. the course content exclusively utilizes a global perspective as a context for student analysis of global social problems and issues;
2. the over-arching purpose of this course is to engender student understanding of contemporary global issues; and
3. global issues from multiple areas (political, economic, environmental, social, and cultural) and their interconnectedness are studied in this course through the lens of multiple perspectives.

I. Catalog Description:
This course is a practicum in global studies in a local setting. As a hands-on course, students will engage in experiential learning outside the classroom through various agencies which have significant ties to international/global issues. Each student will develop a reading list, customized to their particular agency’s focus and complete a minimum of 30 hours of volunteer work with that agency. Students are required to complete a faculty-led orientation and submit academically-sound reflection journals to the SMC instructor. By applying theoretical ideas and empirical data to their experiences, students develop a deeper understanding of international and global relations and issues, particularly as it impacts the target population(s) of the organization with which students are working.

II. Examples of Appropriate Text or Other Required Reading: (include all publication dates; for transferable courses at least one text should have been published within the last five years)
1. In conjunction with the instructor and the agency’s staff, the student will construct an appropriate reading list. Additionally, several articles and/or excerpts regarding a more general understanding of global studies will be assigned by the instructor.

III. Course Objectives:
Upon completion of the course students will be able to:
1. Identify the global context within which the agency’s target population(s) exists.
2. Identify the problems and/or concerns of the agency and how those concerns are linked to global processes.
3. Identify the impact of the agency’s concern on the local population and environment.
4. Apply theoretical concepts and empirical data to the agency’s concern and methodology.
5. Demonstrate an understanding of basic concepts in human geography, including trends in populations, migrations, cultures, and economics that impact both the local milieu and the agency’s concern.
6. Identify the diversity, connections, and change that help define Los Angeles.

IV. Methods of Presentation:
An online orientation will provide an introduction and discussion of basic concepts that will be addressed in the course. Instructors will approve the service-learning placement site. Online discussions involving the instructor as well as classmates will occur, providing feedback and guidance to further academic exploration.

Global Studies Program

Catalog Description:

Global Studies is a multi- and interdisciplinary program designed to increase knowledge and understanding of the processes of globalization and their impacts on societies, cultures, and environments around the world. The Global Studies program provides the student with a knowledge of critical issues that affect their lives and community, as well as the affairs of other cultures, societies, and nations. An understanding of the world’s social, political, economic, and natural systems and their increasing interdependence, along with an appreciation of the diversity of human culture, will supply the student with a strong background for working in a global economy, for living in a multicultural society, and for making intelligent decisions as global citizens.

The goal of the program is to prepare students for further work in international studies and world affairs through the study of other cultures, world history, political and economic systems, world geography and environment, cross-cultural communication and conflict resolution, and modern languages. The Global Studies program is designed to encourage students to become “global thinkers.” They learn how to relate their knowledge of a particular part of the world to the larger trends and issues that affect all societies: the transnational interactions of peoples, cultures, economies, and polities; the globalizing processes of the communications media; technological and environmental changes; law and human rights; the sometimes violent political, ethnic and religious responses to what is perceived as cultural and economic homogenization on a global scale; and the search for a just, sustainable and peaceful world.

Student Learning Outcomes:

Students completing the Global Studies program will possess an increased understanding of the world’s social, political, economic and natural systems and their increasing interdependence, as well as an appreciation of the diversity of human culture which in turn will enable them to better work in the global economy, live in a multicultural society, and make intelligent decision as global citizens. Through the subject matter and activities presented in each course in the Global Studies program, students will be able to:

1. Analyze major global challenges from a multi- and interdisciplinary perspective.
2. Identify varying worldviews on the same issues, events, and occurrences.
3. Differentiate multiple perspectives on globalization and their effects on decision-making and behavior (at the individual, community, institutional, and national levels).
4. Explain how/why the environmental well-being of the world demands personal and collective responsibility at both the local and global levels.
5. Describe core civic/citizenship values which generate socially responsible behavior at both local and global levels.
6. Explain the interconnectedness of global decisions and events.
7. Analyze the interdependence among people, groups, societies, governments, and nations in finding solutions to current global problems and conflicts.

Student ability to analyze, synthesize and evaluate current world events, conditions and issues will be assessed through quizzes and exams, participation in discussions and activities, and term papers and/or projects.
Program Requirements

The Associate in Arts Degree in Global Studies involves satisfactory completion of a minimum of 60 semester units including at least 21.5 semester units in the Global Studies area of emphasis (articulated below) and fulfillment of all SMC General Education Requirements. Please note that students intending to transfer to CSU or UC are also required to complete the CSU-GE or IGETC pattern.

To fulfill the Global Citizenship requirement for the AA degree from Santa Monica College, students must complete an approved 3-unit course with a passing grade. These courses fall into one of the following four categories:

1) American Cultures:

2) Ecological Literacy:

Ecological literacy requires interdisciplinary understanding of both nature and humanity. This includes scientific examination of the interactions between and within the systems and cycles of the atmosphere, lithosphere, and hydrosphere, which together provide the basis for life on Earth. Ecological literacy also includes awareness and understanding of the many continuing impacts that human beings have had on natural environments, at scales ranging from the local to the global, and how those impacts are linked to the sustainability of social, cultural, and political-economic systems. Any course whose content focuses primarily on one or more of three areas (see below) will be considered for the Ecological Literacy category.

3) Global Studies:
...

4) Service Learning:
